A FEEDING FRENZEE

New kid on the block, Frenzee Ltd has launched 14 items, but plans loads more

FRENZEE PRECISION POLE POTS

THE Precision Pots are a series of pole-mounted devices that can be located right on the end of the pole without the risk of damaging your top kit.

They are used in conjunction with the Frenzee i-bush, which makes them very secure and easy to use.

To attach a Precision Pot to your pole, you simply have to fit an i-bush to the end of this bush. It is kept secure thanks to the design of the i-bush, and the best thing about this is that the pot sits right on the end of your pole.

Feeding right on top of your float could not be easier, you simply have to turn the pole. There is no need to push the pole forward – as you would have to if the pot was mounted a couple of feet back from the end of your pole-tip – which saves on time and reduces the risk of tangling the rig.

There are three different styles of Precision Pot available. The Precision Particle has an open top, which is ideal for larger baits like corn and meat. The Precision Maggot has a perforated lid and has been designed for maggots and other medium-sized baits.

The third and final pot is the Precision Pinkie, which has even smaller holes and has been designed for baits such as pinkies and micro pellets.

All the pots have been constructed from a lightweight material and have been designed so that they sit as low on the pole as possible.

The lids on all the pots are hinged and can be opened from both the left and right-hand side, depending on which way you fit the pot on to the bush. This prevents bait from falling out as you ship out and also means that you will not lose the lids!

NEW GEAR FOR 2008

FRENZEE FEEDING POTS

THESE feeding pots are ideal for when you are only fishing at close range and you don't need the Big Daddy Pots.

They are connected to your cupping kit with the same connector as the Big Daddy Pots, which means that you can have just one cupping kit and still use both sets of cups, depending on the situation facing you.

The Frenzee Feeding Pots have a low pivot, which means that they can easily be tipped over to deposit the bait right on top of your target area.

The pots are produced from a lightweight polymer that makes them light and easy to ship in and out, without risking damage to your pole.

You get a 90ml pot and a 250ml pot supplied in a pack.

Price: £4.99

FRENZEE S-BUSH

THE s-bush is just a standard bush, but features the same innovative design as the i-bush with the octagonal bore for smoother elastic flow. It has an internal external fit which means the bush grips both the inner and outer walls of the pole for a secure fit. Three sizes are available which will cater for internal diameters of 2.5mm through to 3.5mm dependent on the model.

Price: £2.50 each

FRENZEE I-BUSH

THE i-bush is a unique interface that enables you to fit the Precision Pots on to your pole-tip, thanks to two ridges on the bush that the pot slides on and fixes it firmly to the i-bush. The internal external fit of the bush grips both the inner and outer walls of the pole. They are made from top-quality materials ensuring a smooth flow of elastic from the bush. This is aided by the octagonal internal bore, which reduces the amount of elastic in contact with the bush and therefore creates less friction. The i-bush is available in three sizes. The small i-bush has an internal diameter of 2.5mm for hollow elastics up to size 8-12 and the medium has an internal diameter of 3.5mm for elastics up to size 12-16. For thicker elastics, there is a large i-bush with an internal diameter of 4.5mm.

Price: £1.99 each

FRENZEE BIG DADDY POTS

THE Big Daddy Pots are supplied with three different-sized pots in a pack.

These are 90ml, 250ml and 400ml. The 400ml pot is simply massive, which will come in handy on commercial waters.

Some of you might be worried about whether or not your pole can take the strain of such a large pole cup, but Frenzee has designed the Big Daddy pole cups so that they can be floated out on the surface of the water. Clever! This is done thanks to a lip on the pole cup that traps air and makes the cup float, even when loaded to the limit.

There is also a lip on top of the cup that prevents water from splashing into the cup and filling it with water.

Even if you are using one of the smaller pole cups, you can still float them on the surface to make shipping out easier.

This also allows you to manoeuvre the pot into those tricky swims, such as under overhanging trees and bushes which the normal bend in a pole carrying a pole pot will not allow you to reach.

These pots will certainly come in handy at venues where you need to fish your pole at really long lengths of 16m and beyond, when shipping out with a standard pot becomes particularly unmanageable.

The pack of Big Daddy Pots comes with an adaptor to permanently fix on to your pole cupping kit. This adaptor fits all the pots in the Frenzee range, allowing you to use both sets of cups with just one adaptor.

Price: £ 7.99 each
